

HELPING YOU THROUGH THE RECESSION:
AT BELLEROSE ANIMAL HOSPITAL

We remain trained professionals offering quality preventive care for the long term health of our patients and their families.

- We are your pets' surgeon, radiologist, dermatologist, neurologist, psychiatrist, dentist and pharmacist
- We are available, compassionate and understanding
- We face the constant rising costs of maintaining our facility, equipment and support staff to provide the level of care you have learned to expect from us.

OUR PLEDGE TO OUR CLIENTS:

- There will be no service fee increases in 2009
- We will raise prices on laboratory testing and medications only by the amount our laboratory and vendors increase our costs (In some cases we will not pass along the price increases as in the case of Royal Canin Foods)
- We will continue to offer the best quality medicine
- We will continue to provide memorable, compassionate care
- We will maintain standards of Preventative Medicine....looking for small problems before they become complicated expensive problems

WHAT WE DO NOT BELIEVE IN:

- Low-cost clinics. Their advertising and promotions are often misleading. They cannot offer the same range of services as a fully-equipped hospital. They do not have licensed veterinary nurses. They do not monitor their patients through the night.
- The belief that human care is cheaper than veterinary care. Any human without medical insurance who has been sick has seen the true bottom line and can understand the astronomical cost human medicine. Veterinary medicine cannot be compared to these fees.

Waiting until a dog or cat is very sick before offering it medical care. (Cats are notorious for hiding symptoms of disease.)
